Jake and Anya have been friends for years, but their relationship has always been strictly platonic. However, when they're forced to work together on a joint mission, their feelings for each other start to change.

Jake is a strong and silent type, but he can't help but be drawn to Anya's strength and determination. Anya is independent and self-assured, but she's also vulnerable and insecure.

As they spend more time together, Jake and Anya realize that they have more in common than they thought. They both have a strong sense of duty, and they're both willing to sacrifice everything for their country.

But their relationship is put to the test when they're faced with a dangerous mission. Jake is injured, and Anya has to make a life-or-death decision that could save his life.

Review

Commander in Briefs is a well-written and engaging sports romance novella. The characters are well-developed and relatable, and the plot is suspenseful and exciting.

I loved the chemistry between Jake and Anya. They're both strong and independent, but they also have a vulnerable side. I rooted for them from the beginning, and I was so happy when they finally got together.

The mission scenes were also very well-written. I felt like I was right there with Jake and Anya, experiencing the danger and excitement. I couldn't put the book down until I found out what happened.

Overall, Commander in Briefs is a great read for fans of sports romance, military romance, and suspense. I highly recommend it.

Excerpt

Anya stood there for a moment, her heart pounding in her chest. She couldn't believe what she had just seen.

"Jake," she whispered. "You're okay."

Jake smiled weakly. "I'm okay," he said. "Thanks to you."

Anya knelt down beside him and took his hand. "I'm so glad," she said. "I thought I'd lost you."

Jake squeezed her hand. "I'm not going anywhere," he said. "Not until I've told you how I feel."

Anya looked into his eyes, and her heart skipped a beat. She knew what he was going to say.

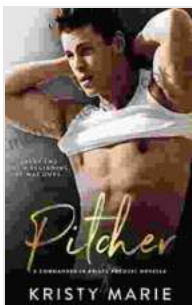

"I love you, Anya," Jake said. "I have for a long time."

Tears of joy streamed down Anya's face. "I love you too, Jake," she said. "I always have."

Jake leaned forward and kissed her. It was a slow, sweet kiss, full of love and longing.

When they finally broke apart, Jake whispered, "Will you marry me, Anya?"

Anya smiled. "Yes," she said. "Yes, I will."
